NEWS ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The mob that took John Sampson out of his house at Saranac, Ark., to hang him for horse stealing, released him upon his opening a barrel of beer.

A census enumerator got a terrible whipping in Pittsburg because he pressed a stalwart Irish woman for an answer to the question, "are you white or black?"

Miss Rigney, a school teacher at Lincoln, Ill., white, married the Rev. Mr. Raymond, colored, and her relatives are endeavoring to send her to an asylum, on the ground that her love for him is a mania.

A man was struck down with paralysis in a Michigan sawmill. He fell across a log which was being sawed, and was carried with it slowly but surely to the saw. He was conscious, but utterly helpless. The saw had cut half way through his arm before his awful predicament was discovered.

Miss Wilson is a Delaware heiress and beauty. She fell in love with a farm hand, because she deemed him heroic; but when they eloped, and he ran away from her across the fields at the approach of her father, she concluded that she had overrated him and went home contentedly.

Bernard Goodman married the widow Powers, at Chicago, but soon transferred his love to her daughter Nelly, aged fourteen. He asked the girl to elope with and marry him. She refused, and immediately told her mother of the offer. Mrs. Goodman was ill at the time, and the shock of this news killed her instantly.

A Queer Sort of Blessing.

From the Springfield Republican.

A gentleman in a town near Boston invited home to dinner one day one of the deacons of the church he attended. The guest offered blessing at the table, which proceeding greatly excited the curiosity of the gentleman's five-year-old son, who sat beside the deacon and interviewed him on the subject.

"What was that you said?" he began. "It was a blessing on the food we are about to eat," replied the deacon. "A what?" "Why, a blessing. Don't your father ask a blessing at the table?" "Oh yes; but he don't say it in that way." "How does he say it?" "Why he sits down and looks at the table and says, 'oh the devil! is this all you've got for dinner!'"

Garlic for Hydrophobia.

The British Medical Journal says that garlic has always had a great reputation among anti-hydrophobia remedies, and is found as a principal ingredient in a large number of formal long kept secret. A young man bitten by a mad dog was shut up in a loft. In his delirium he seized upon some bundles of garlic, ate greedily of it, fell into a deep sleep, and awoke calm and cured.

A Mass Meeting Saturday Night.

It is proposed to make the Reform club meeting on Saturday night an occasion for a general jubilee over the prospect of the early construction of a railroad north from Reno. Gov. Woods, John T. Davis and J. C. McTarnahan, directors of the road, are named as speakers for the occasion. As the Reform club hall is unsuited for the purpose it is recommended that the meeting be held at the theatre. Unusual attractions will be presented in the programme. A play entitled "Country Cousins" will be enacted by some of the best local talent. Miss Julia Allen is named as leading lady, Judge Cassitt as Mr. Fossil, and Charles Coen as Count. Miss Mary Toombs is down for a song. The programme will doubtless draw a large audience.

WAR IMMINENT!

The Nestor of the Putes Insulted by Drunken Washoes—He Threatens to Lead the Putes to Battle—And Mop the Trunk of the Washoes—An Official Statement From Captain Dave.

There is trouble brewing between the Putes and the Washoes. In an interview with a GAZETTE representative yesterday Capt. Dave, a prominent Pute, made the following statement of facts. He says that on Sunday he accompanied the venerable Pute chieftain Winnemucca, as his lieutenant, to the Indian encampment near the Poor House where the Washoes were holding their festival. A number of drunken Washoes gathered about Winnemucca and after a time one of them took a long piece of rope, doubled it and struck the old chief with it. The old warrior felt the insult very keenly and immediately left the camp. Had not Capt. Dave stepped up quickly at the time the chief was struck, he thinks that Winnemucca would, old as he is, have injured a large area of the dancing ground with the blood of slain Washoes. Winnemucca was so stung with resentment that he gnashed his teeth, and swore by all the Putes hold holy, by the graves of his fathers, by the white snow on the mountains, by the deep lakes and the flowing rivers, that he would wreak a fell revenge for the indignity that had been put upon him. He then shook from his feet the dust and vermin of the Washoe camp, and came directly to town, taking the first train for the headquarters of his tribe at Wadsworth.

Capt. Dave is now the acting chief of the Putes, being "a favorite son" of the tribe, and the mantle of authority, which is slipping from the aged shoulders of Winnemucca bids fair to descend upon him. The stalwart Captain believes that there will soon be the devil to pay between the tribes unless the Washoes make a formal apology to the Putes for the insult offered the patriarchal chief of the latter. He thinks that Winnemucca is now whooping up the Putes and inciting them to take up arms to punish the Washoes. Capt. Dave says it's "bad time of year for go to war. Too damn dry for much fight." He says, however, that he has notified the Washoes about here that if they don't stop getting drunk and interfering with the Putes, "there will be"—to pay—sudden.

ROBBED AGAIN.

The Bodie Stage Again Stopped and the Treasure Box Stolen.

The stage coach from Carson for Bodie was again robbed on Monday, in the same place where it was stopped last week, and by the same men. This time the passengers were not molested, the road agents contenting themselves with Wells Fargo & Co.'s treasure box. They told the driver, whom they robbed last week, that they still had his watch and would return it to him. They also promised to place the express box and its contents, after they had taken the money, by the roadside where it could be seen and picked up. The express agent at Carson estimates that the robbers got about $300 from the box. The passengers on the coach were Mrs. E. Crown, Mrs. McBride and child, I. Stead, I. W. Smith and John Cameron.

Since the robbery last week several parties of men have been hunting for these highwaymen and were supposed to be close upon their trail. One of the Virginia papers had an interesting account of how a band of Putes had been tracking them through the desert, guided by the unerring instinct of the red man, etc. Now the same men turn up at the identical spot where they committed the robbery a week ago and stop the coach again. A bolder thing was never done in the days of Dick Turpin, or of Robin Hood. But they have been too bold, their capture seems almost a certainty.

On the former occasion the passengers were treated with great indignity, the robbers cursing them one and all with the most filthy oaths that they could lay their tongues to. There was a lady in the stage whom they called the vilest of names without the slightest provocation. She was a poor woman with a little child, and had only $7, but they took it from her, every cent. Among the passengers at that time was Mr. Shaw, Agent for the Cutting Packing Co. of San Francisco. He had $100 in bills in a pocket which the robbers did not find. One man took off his gold chain before he got out of the coach and held it in his hand all the time while the robbers searched him. There was only one pistol in the crowd, and that was a little, good-for-nothing thing. Mr. Shaw had twice a chance to shoot while standing in the road, but had no weapon. He was in town yesterday, and has since gone on his way home.

It is related of the last robbery that a lady passenger who had a number of gold notes in her pocket tucked them away under her hair when she heard the robbers stop the coach. She would probably have saved her money had the passengers been called upon to disgorge, but fortunately the robbers did not disturb the passengers and they had no occasion to hide their valuables.

GRASSHOPPERS.

Manners and Customs of the Insects—Their Harvesting Operations Till the Meadows.

In talking to a number of well known ranchers last evening a good deal of information respecting the depredations, the habits and general "cussedness" of the grasshopper was elicited. P. J. Kelly, although likely to be a considerable loser by grasshopper, gave a jocose account of them. He says last year it was thought that the pests would not injure alfalfa but confine themselves to timothy. They are now fairly "going for" the clover, and bid fair to get a good share of it in this valley. They are quite thick on Mr. Kelly's alfalfa fields, and have done the crop considerable damage. When the hoppers first came to the country, the ranchers used to drown them by flooding the land as the insects were reposing on it at night. As a proof of the infernal cunning of the creatures Mr. Kelly states that they now climb to the very tops of the clover when night comes on, seemingly determined to sleep as high up as they can. Thus there is no chance to drown them out. Towards sundown it is an interesting and instructive sight to see Mr. Kelly's hoppers begin to climb the alfalfa stems and gradually settle down upon the tops to a secure repose. At nightfall the clover looks black with them. The rancher says he will take any number of chickens or other poultry on shares this summer, and thinks he would make money out of such an arrangement. Fowls devour the insects with impunity and fatten fast on them. Mr. Mapes some time ago offered to insure his crop for $1,000 and Mr. Kelly is now sorry that he did not accept the offer.

Mr. Kelly has a little plan to outwit the grasshoppers of this season. He has 125 acres of grain and about the same number of clover. The insects have not yet entered the grain fields but confine themselves to the clover, evidently believing that there is a time to hay and a time to reap. He proposes to defer haying until a late date, say after the Fourth, for he thinks that as soon as he cuts the clover the hoppers will move into the grain. When he does cut he will leave a wide strip of clover standing between the grain and the grass fields as forage for the hoppers. He hopes that before they devour all that his grain will be ready for reaping.

The fact that the locusts, finding that clover is the main crop of this valley, are cultivating a taste for it, although they at first passed it by, and also that the insects, which used to sleep upon the ground, now repose upon the clover tops at night to escape flooding by the artificial rancher—these are proofs to many intelligent agriculturists that the hopper is at the front rank of evolution, and possesses a marked capability for adjusting itself to its environment. Some think that the situation in this valley is becoming a competitive struggle for existence between the rancher and the hopper, with the odds on the hopper.

Mr. Whistler says that although the hoppers hatched out very thick in spots on his ranch some weeks ago they have done no appreciable damage as yet. While the insects were still very young they dispersed over his ranch and do not now seem numerous.

On the ranches of Stephen Ede and D. C. Wheeler, locusts have appeared in great numbers, and are devouring the alfalfa.

Mr. Jacques, on Mrs. Hickman's ranch, states that the "long-legged leapers" have fast eating up the clover. He will try to save it by cutting, and will commence mowing to-morrow.

The Calico Ball.

Many dancers attended the calico ball at the Pavilion last evening and the spectators were numerous. Dancing commenced at 9 o'clock and continued until 12 o'clock in the morning. The music was furnished by Kaufman's band, and Mrs. Amos Alt was caller. The floor is one of the best in the place for dancing and the abundance of fresh air in the spacious and lofty hall prevented much discomfort from heat. The receipts of the ball will be given to the building fund of the Catholic church.

An Arm Broken.

Mrs. John Dixon fell and broke her arm last evening. She was standing upon a chair, fastening up a window curtain. She slipped, and fell to the floor, her arm striking the edge of a bucket that was standing near. Mrs. Dixon is over fifty years of age, and has three times been laid up with a broken bone. Once she fractured her thigh and once her collar bone. Dr. Hogan, who is attending her, says that the case is not serious, and that the bone will knit in due time.

The Northern Railroad.

Gov. Woods and J. C. McTarnahan, Directors of the projected northern railroad, arrived this morning. They have been in conference with a number of leading men this afternoon in regard to the road. John T. Davis is expected to arrive to-morrow. Assurance is given of a speedy commencement of operations.

A Donkey's Delicating Kick.

A number of small boys have been having great sport of late with a diminutive donkey that would buck and kick, rear and roll, to their infinite amusement, when one of them attempted to ride him. But now they give the little quadruped a wide berth, for a vigorous kick from him dislocated the elbow of Willie Menke, and they know the animal is dangerous.

THE INDIAN FEAST.

A "Big Dinner" With No Political Significance—Captain Jim Still Chief of the Washoes.

A GAZETTE reporter last evening visited the Indian encampment where the hunters' feast has been in progress, and interviewed a prominent man of the tribe. The red man sat upon the ground, eating a loaf of baker's bread. This he did in a peculiar fashion. He did not cut the loaf into slices, but dug out the inside with his side with his finger. By his side was a small tin box of butter, from which he at times took small pieces with his knife and spread them upon his bread. It was noticeable that he did not put this useful instrument into his mouth, while the fashion of many of his white brethren, but contented himself with applying it to its legitimate purposes. By his side was a large dish of mush made from ground acorn. This dish was however neglected for the more palatable bread of the pale face.

Engaging this child of the desert in conversation, the reporter found that he could understand English well and speak it readily and intelligibly. The Indian said that there had been about 300 Indians in the gathering, but that most of them had gone away and there would be no more dancing, at least for the present. In a month there might be another feast. The festival did not come at regular periods, but when the hunters had good luck. He explained that the general muster of the redskins had no political significance whatever. It was simply a "big dinner," that was all. In regard to a statement that had appeared in a local morning paper, to the effect that the tribe had met to elect a new chief, the red man said that the local morning paper, he had been misinformed. The present chief is Captain Jim of Wadsworth, who was elected this spring. The Indians who had taken part in the festivities of the past few days, were almost all Washoes.

The encampment in which this information was gleaned had been made with considerable pains. A level spot had been selected on the south bank of the river, opposite the tannery, about a quarter of a mile below the Poor House. This had been thoroughly cleared of rocks and sagebrush and made an excellent dancing ground. The cleared space had been sheltered on the west or windward side with an improvised hedge of willow trees, with their trunks sharpened and thrust into the ground. Around the enclosure a number of wigwags had been constructed with considerable care, although put up for a temporary use. As the reporter returned to the town he passed a good many departing braves, bound for the hunting grounds. Most of these Indian bucks sported linen dusters in a more or less fresh condition, and strolled along with their hands in their pockets. The squaws were, however, loaded down with luggage, tied in a big bundle and carried upon the back, its weight partly sustained by a broad band passing over the forehead. The subjection of women has not yet become a subject for agitation among the Indians.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

What a Reno Man Observed On a Trip by Rail from San Francisco to Los Angeles.

FROM THE SUMMIT.

We descend very rapidly, and at half past 9 A. M. reached Mojave, where we took breakfast. This place is only a small station on the railroad, and water has to be brought thirteen miles, as it is situated in the Mojave desert, into which we have rapidly descended from the mountains. There are also a great many teamsters with their prairie schooners, who freight goods from this place to some of the mines on the hills, and they are all that keep the place in existence. After breakfast we started on our journey, fast we are, for miles we are on the desert, with no scenery but greasewood and yucca plants. We soon pass out of the desert and are in a small valley of hills, then do. Oak and which there are plenty of. The greasewood trees, and finally reach a village, which is quite a village, having many fine gardens in which grow all kinds of fruits. I also observed that "bee raising" was carried on very extensively. As we pass down the valley it widens and we soon come into a large open country, where agriculture is carried on with success. The Santa Clara creek flows through the valley and furnishes water whenever irrigation is necessary. The farmers were cutting their crops as I passed along the valley and it was only the 18th day of May, so Southern California may truly be called the garden spot of the land, for it is always summer there. At 12:30 we reached Newhall, which is situated on the Santa Clara creek and contains many very fine residences. The Continental Oil Company has a refinery here which was erected at an expense of over $40,000. After leaving Newhall we begin the ascent of

THE SAN FERNANDO MOUNTAINS, whose sides are covered with green shrubs and grass, and soon enter the San Fernando tunnel, which is over 6,000 feet in length, and through which we pass at a very slow rate of speed, imagining at the same time that it is night, as the car lamps are lighted. Emerging from the south end we descend into the valley and soon reach San Fernando, which is only a small village. This valley produces the greatest amount of grain of any in Southern California, and here no irrigation is required and short crops have only been known twice in twenty years. In the west the mirage presents a wonderful appearance; while in the east a rugged, broken range of mountains makes the scenery very picturesque. I noticed a peculiar species of the century plant in this valley. It is about ten feet high, three or four inches in diameter, and at the top, branches spread out like a tree for a distance of two feet, having leaves upon them. The general color of the tree is yellow, while the leaves are tinged with white. It blooms every fifteen years, and has such a fragrant blossom that the whole country is highly scented when there are many of them in bloom at the same time. At eight miles north of Los Angeles we reach the river bearing the same name. It is a small stream in itself, but of much significance on the maps. The railroad follows the river and soon we reach Los Angeles, where we stop for dinner, and also have to change cars. The city is some distance from the depot, but there are always plenty of coaches and hacks there to take passengers wherever they wish to go.

Treat all Chronic and Special Diseases

YOUNG MEN

WHO MAY BE SUFFERING FROM the effects of youthful folly or indiscretion, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity. DR. SPINNEY will guarantee to forfeit $500 for every case of seminal weakness or private disease of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN.

There are many at the age of thirty and still who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits aropy sediment will often be found, and some small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milky hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this disease, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure
